

NOTARIZATION AND AUTHENTICATION

NOTARIZATION

Notarization of documents is a fraud-deterrent process that ensures the document is authentic and can be trusted.

AUTHENTICATION OF DOCUMENTS:

The Society of Notaries Public BC and the government of BC certify the authenticity of the documents, i.e. public

CERTIFIED TRUE COPIES:

These are copies of a notarized document that a notary public certified its accuracy representation as of original. We will compare both documents (original and copy) and then we will sign and stamp considering them as certified true copies.

These can be recommended options if you are in favor to marked up your original documents. However, certified true copies are also beneficial to keep safe your original documents as not all foreign authorities and diplomatic missions accept certified true copies.

AFFIDAVIT AND STATUARY DECLARATIONS

An affidavit is a written document made of facts either voluntarily decided upon or made under oath. This written document of facts made under oath by the "deponent" is sworn and solemnly to be true. In the context of court proceedings, usually, this document would be made.

Statutory Declaration: When a person solemnly declares the contents of a document are true. This is a written document and has the same legal effect as an oath in the eyes of the court. Statutory declarations are mandated by the Canada Evidence act and British Columbia Evidence Act.
